poped fresh strength during the first half of the session, the market later was unable to resist the weight of offerings which were precipitated by assertions that the world supply was the largest ever known at this season. The available stock totals had increased 1,753,000 bushels as compared with last week and was nearly $9,000.

In the selling that followed the announcement of these figures, shorts as well as longs took a free hand, leaving the market in the end to have been conspicuous in the short selling, whereas Wall Street concerns were reported as having released to a notable extent on holdings.

Corn prices were governed largely by the action of wheat. Oats like wheat were bearishly influenced by reports of increasing stocks.
